Course presentation

Colposcopy is essential in current gynecology practice. The main indication of this exam is the early diagnosis of cervical cancer (CCU), currently the second most common cancer in young women.

Continuing medical education should be a concern to all specialists dedicated to colposcopy and CCU screening. There is no national colposcopy training program in Portugal and optional postgraduate training is insufficient. The Advanced Theoretical-Practical Colposcopy Course, directed to specialists in gynecology and obstetrics, aims to address this gap and consolidate the skills acquired at the basic Colposcopy Course. Passing this course, certified by the European Federation for Colposcopy, is one of SPCPTGI's accreditation modalities in Colposcopy.

General objectives

- Reinforce basic concepts gained in the basic course on: cervical anatomy and histology, preinvasive disease and benefit of its screening
- Understand the benefits and limitations of HPV immunization
- Understand treatment techniques of premalignant lesions of the Lower Genital Tract
- Provide information on recent development and guidelines (local and in other countries)
- Improve Colposcopy technique
- Performance of guidelines
